INTERNATIONAL OPPORTUNITIES FOR RESEARCHERS

Ms. Francesca Mura, Head of International Research Office, University of Padua (Italy) is launching the 3rd edition of the Supporting Talent in Research@University of Padua – STARS@UNIPD call proposal.

For wider publicity of this proposal, the following details are being shared so that interested candidate may apply. The details of the proposal are as follows:

The STARS@UNIPD call aims at promoting and encouraging high quality, innovative and ambitious research in all scientific areas, offering support to ground-breaking ideas with definite potential to turn into competitive proposals for international funding, such as the prestigious European Research Council grants.

In particular, STARS Starting Grants (STARS-StG) are designed to fund promising international PIs who have been awarded their first PhD within a minimum of 2 and a maximum of 7 years (prior to 1st January 2021) and are about to establish their own research team and/or starting their own independent research.

The call and its annexes will be officially published on 11 January 2021 on the Programme web page <https://www.unipd.it/en/stars2021>.

The on line procedure for the submission will be available from 11 January and the application deadline is on 12 January 2021 at 1:00 p.m. (Italy time zone).

Please find enclosed a brief Summary of the Programme. We would really appreciate if you could circulate the call among young researchers and potential candidates.

Any further clarification requests can be addressed to the University of Padua International Research Office: talent.stars@unipd.it.
